

Grandparent's Day in 3rd Grade

Grandparent's Day was September 11. At New Boston Elementary, it was September 12. There are 39 third graders this year and most of them invited one or two of their grandparents to come to the annual Grandparent's Tea. It was one of the largest crowds since the event began. Each one related what it was like when they were third graders and how different it is today. A lot of them didn't have hot lunches. You had to bring a cold lunch every day. Many wore skirts and dresses, but could wear jeans underneath when it got cold. Several talked about what great teachers they had and some of the fun things they did to entertain themselves. It was a fun-filled afternoon for the kids and the grandparents! We should do it more often!
